

Transpeak Radio Episode 3 – United, We Are Strong – (with Karina Samala) Audio transcript

Full audio: <https://www.archive.foundation.org/transpeak-radio-episode-3-united-we-are-strong-with-karina-samala/>

Transpeak Radio (00:00)

This is Transpeak Radio.

Gabriel Gullerowsky (00:15)

A project by ONE Archives Foundation with generous support from the California Humanities.

Gabriel Gullerowsky (00:25)

Hi, I'm Gabriel Gullerowsky. My pronouns are they/them, and I was lucky enough to interview the amazing Karina Samala.

Gabriel Gullerowsky (00:32)

When I learned who I was going to be interviewing, I was really excited to be able to speak to a trans woman. As I've been navigating my own identity as a trans female person, I haven't had a lot of role models in my life that I could speak to or learn from.

Gabriel Gullerowsky (00:36)

So, as I read about Karina and all the things she'd done, I was not only happy to interview someone interesting, but I was also really excited to just get to talk to another trans person, especially an older in the trans female community.

Karina Samala (00:46)

Being there for each other, we need to be united as a community. We need to work together, we still... Even with our community, I see this breakout. United, we are strong. And also, the thing that... We must all stand together, proud and empowered, to tell the whole world, in one voice, that we are members also on the human race. Nothing more, nothing less. We're equal.

Gabriel Gullerowsky (00:50)

I got a little emotional after this interview because it was just such a breath of fresh air to see a trans person so successful and happy. She really is an inspiration to me, and I hope she'll be an inspiration to you, too. Amén.

Gabriel Gullerowsky (00:55)

Content warning: Topics of trans-rejection and violence are discussed in this interview. Please listen with your safety in mind.

Gabriel Gullerowsky (00:57)